Lights, Camera, Action Camp!

Students are buzzing about the upcoming Kidz-N-Fun Camp that educates kids about the process of creating art in the visual medium.

But, we won't just be learning about film, television and video, we'll actually be making our own short video written by, shot by and starring the students themselves in this hands on, teamwork approach to learning.

What will your beginning filmmaker need for this camp?	Some of the concepts discussed in camp are:
Lots of Creative Ideas	Media Literacy – Scriptwriting
A Cooperative Attitude	Differences in Genres
We'll take care of the rest!	Lighting, Acting, Editing

This camp program is perfect for the boy or girl who loves to tell stories using drawing, toys or verbal skills, but is also ideal for those kids who may have a tough time communicating in a traditional sense. It is set up to take group of children from a simple group idea and bring it to life on camera. The instructor will piece together the story, add the students' favorite music and any special effects. The final day of camp features a special awards ceremony and a screening of the film which will go home with each student.
